Dear Prof. WANG,

It was so shocked to hear the sad news.

And thank you, for organizing us, give us the chance to memory a so nice person. I am still too sad to really express my appreciation for his help.

Prof. Troy is so professional, his passion on science, his sadness when potential students gave up science, his purity on research, his patience to encourage students. As he said, "there is "no built-in guarantee" for success in the "scientific method of investigation". If there were, it would not be RESEARCH, where in the aim is to seek answers to the unknown."

He is so kind to help people around him, no matter friends, or strangers. His words encourage me when I was stuck in the darkness. His politeness remind me that there are friends who really respect you. His enthusiasm for current moment impress me that life is too short to waste.

I know him eight years ago, he is curious about the whole world, and just the first day we met, he said the secret why he succeeded, keep asking simple questions. thank you, for all influence on my life. because of you, I have the courage to jump from the comfort zone, and know it is never too late.

My mentor, my friend.

I miss him forever.

Yours sincerely,

ZHANG Xuebing
